Brief introduction of your research experience:

I have currently been working as a teacher of School of Management, Guangdong University of Technology from August 2004. At the same time, I am also a director of China Logistics Society and an executive director of Guangdong Logistics & Supply Chain Society.

My research focuses on producer services, manufacturing servitization, logistics and supply chain management, especially the linkage development relationship among industries, such as the linkage development relationship between producer services and manufacturing. Much of my research has been in close collaboration with industry.

I have had five projects funded by the National Ministry of Education, National Natural Science Foundation, Science & Technology bureau Foundation of Guangdong Province and our School Doctor Foundation. Among them, two projects are my recent studies, which mainly focus on the interactive development among industries. One is about the interactive and integrated development between Manufacturing and Producer services, the other is about the correlation effect and spatial layout and coordination degree modeling & simulation of manufacturing and logistics industry based on the Pearl River Delta Region.
